The Fairies in the Cornfield

Autumn is here! As we celebrate the autumnal equinox, we close the chapter on the summer season and turn toward the harvest. It is a weekend of balance, as the day and night share equal time. Autumn is a beautiful opportunity for self-reflection and contemplation in search of balance within our lives and to harvest the moments of faith around us.

As I reflect upon the harvest season, I am reminded of a memorable story about my great-great grandfather Joe. In the early 1880s, Joe was a new farmer and a new husband, with a father-in-law who didn't approve of a disabled, former wagon-maker marrying his daughter. But Joe was a wise and hard-working man.

One year Joe raised a fine field of corn. All summer his father-in-law kept his eye on it, noting its progress. As the fall wore on, and there was no apparent indication that anyone was cutting the field, Joe's father-in-law kept hounding him: when was he going to get down to work and cut his corn? Good weather was being wasted, soon the snow would begin to fly, and what was Joe doing that he couldn't take proper care of his field? Joe must be even lazier than he had thought!

Unbeknownst to his father-in-law, Joe had started shocking the corn from the center of the field, working outward, leaving the outer rows untouched. One night, Joe and his wife finished the last rows under the harvest moon.

The next morning, his father-in-law was stunned to see the entire field harvested and demanded an explanation. Joe simply said, "The fairies must have done it," leaving his father-in-law baffled.

I look to this story as a reminder of the importance of working from the inside out, regardless of what others perceive, or their criticisms. Joe's father-in-law judged him based on what he could see, not realizing that Joe was working diligently in a way that wasn't immediately visible.

May we take this season to deeply contemplate our lives, to find balance between seriousness and playfulness, and to work hard within ourselves in order to see the presence of God everywhere. Let us have faith in our personal efforts and in the unseen work that goes on behind the scenes, trusting that it will all come to fruition in due time.

Peace and Blessings,
Katie

Pray Always and In All Ways

Prayer and works are deeply interconnected, each enhancing the other in a faithful life. St. Benedict approached spirituality as a relationship between pray and work (Ora et Labora) which emphasizes that all work can be a form of prayer when done with the awareness of God's presence.

"Pray as though everything depended on God. Work as though everything depended on you."

-St. Augustine
